Annabelle McKinney rests in a bed at the Pittsburgh hospital after her liver transplant surgery Thursday morning.

arrived around 8:15 p.m. By 10:30 p.m., the doctors wheeled Annabelle into the operation room. Surgery started around midnight.

She remained in the operating room until about 9 a.m. Thursday.

"They kept saying it was a beautiful liver," Charity said. "I don't know what makes a liver beautiful, but whatever she got seemed to be perfect for her."

Doctors said the surgery went as well as could be expected. Her parents were allowed to see her around 12:30 p.m. that day in the Pediatric Intensive Care Unit, after they'd checked into the Ronald McDonald House, located adjacent to hospital.

"We were relieved," Charity said. "Everything looked really well. I think most people — all those tubes would be scary. But for us, she looked scarier the first few days after she was born with the dialysis versus what she looked like here."

In the days following the surgery, doctors have slowly begun taking tubes out. Her breathing tube was removed Saturday. Her arterial IV, nose cannula and urine catheter were removed Monday.

"Every day they do an ultrasound on her liver, and that's been checking out good every day," Charity said.

Annabelle is making progress every day — on Monday she even sat up for a few seconds on her own, Charity said. A few of her metabolic levels remain elevated, but doctors are keeping an eye on it, she said.

The family was in talks with doctors about moving out of the PICU and onto the recovery floor of the hospital this week. With the help of Mike's and Charity's parents, Annabelle always has somebody in the room with her.

Prior to the transplant, doctors told the McKinnies they should expect to stay in the hospital for three to six months. With her recovery going well so far, they hope it's on the shorter side of that, Mike said.

Through COTA, the McKinney family will continue to collect donations for the transplant and post-transplant care.

"With all the support from everybody through social media and the way everybody has reached out to us — it has been very encouraging," he said. "Just to see what's going on and how the story is making it's way out and people are seeking it. God is using her for big things."

The facility has a Greensboro address but is in the Piedmont Centre business park in the High Point city limits.

The corporate headquarters of Ennis-Flint, which produces pavement markers, will occupy one of the floors of the fourth wing. Superion would occupy other space in the complex.

If the project goes forward in High Point, the city would provide the incentive funding in installment payments after the company documented that it had created the jobs.

Stocks edge higher as retailers rally

BY MARLEY JAY
AP MARKETS WRITER

NEW YORK — U.S. stocks rose slightly Wednesday as Urban Outfitters and Target helped retailers rally. That was enough to cancel out more losses for energy companies.

Urban Outfitters and Target did better in the second quarter than analysts expected, and Target raised its forecasts for the year. That helped companies that sell clothing and other retailers. Technology companies and firms that make and sell household goods also traded higher.

A wide variety of retailers saw their shares sink the day before based on weak earnings reports. With Wal-Mart and Ross Stores in line to report their own results Thursday, investors could change their minds again.

"This sector is not for the faint of heart," said JJ Kinahan, chief strategist for TD Ameritrade. "The market is trying to figure out who the winners and losers are going to be."

He said turbulence for retailers will be a constant as online competition keeps growing and customers want more features like same-day delivery.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index picked up 3.50 points, or 0.1 percent, to 2,468.11. The Dow Jones industrial average added 25.88 points, or 0.1 percent, to 22,024.87. The Nasdaq composite gained 12.10 points, or 0.2 percent, to 6,345.11. The Russell 2000 index of smaller companies inched up 0.30 points to 1,383.53.

Clothing and accessories retailer Urban Outfitters had a better second quarter than Wall Street expected, and analysts said there are some signs the company's business is recovering after years of struggles. The stock rose $2.94, or 17.5 percent, to $19.76. Even with those gains, it's down 31 percent this year and recently traded at eight-year lows, far below its price of $45 a share in early 2015.

Target gained $1.96, or 3.6 percent, to $56.31. The company raised its annual estimates after it did better than analysts expected in the second quarter. Gap climbed 50 cents, or 2.3 percent, to $22.57. Express added 27 cents, or 4.8 percent, to $5.84. Retailers had struggled a day earlier after poor results and lower forecasts from Dick's Sporting Goods and Advance Auto Parts. The S&P 500 index of retailers climbed 1.7 percent Wednesday after a 2.3 percent plunge the day before.

Benchmark U.S. crude lost 77 cents, or 1.6 percent, to $46.78 a barrel in New York. Brent crude, used to price international oils, dipped 53 cents, or 1 percent, to $50.27 a barrel in London. That pulled energy companies down further. EOG Resources fell $2.04, or 2.3 percent, to $84.98 and Marathon Oil fell 34 cents, or 2.9 percent, to $11.19.

Energy companies have slumped this month, but their second-quarter profits have improved dramatically compared to a year ago. A year ago the companies were struggling to make money thanks to a prolonged slump in oil prices. But for more than a year, U.S. crude has mostly stayed between $40 and $55 a barrel.
